Case of Charles H. Miller
Heard Before Justice of Peace Arison.

RAID ON MOONSHINERS

By United Press.
VANDERBILT, May 2.—Charles H. Miller was given judgment in the amount of $195.63 for services rendered to the Dawson Investors Gas & Oil Company during 1920 and 1921, when the company was drilling for gas and oil on the farm of Peter Snyder's heirs in Lower Tyrone township. Although a little gas was found, the wells were abandoned a year ago. Numerous debts have been paid up. Representatives of the company were before Justice of the Peace C. H. Arison Wednesday where a hearing was given in the Miller case.

Moonshine Plants Raided.
Constable Jerry Rittenour, C. D. Arison and Constable Charles Moon of Lower Tyrone township conducted a raid upon moonshiners in Perry township at Sandrock yesterday and confiscated three quarts of "white stuff" which was found in the home of Mike Sween. He was released upon $1,000 bail furnished by Mrs. Mary Pleva for appearance before Justice of the Peace C. H. Arison Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Three other homes were searched and 20 gallons of mash was found in one, 52 gallons in another, while a still was found in the third. When the occupants resisted the officials, they began pitching stills, mash, blenders and all "moonshine paraphernalia" apparatus outdoors. The officials destroyed the mash and stills.

The Young Men's Bible Class of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Galley of Walnut street last evening, with 16 members present. The Paul Turnpike Athletic Association will meet the North Hamiltons at the Dickinson Gym Y. M. C. A. grounds this evening in the first game of a series of five. ## SPARKS CIRCUS LIVES UP TO ALL THE PRESS AGENT SAID OF IT

The Sparks Circus showed to two large crowds here yesterday. The afternoon performance did not get under way until after 3:30 o'clock, because of delays encountered in getting the show from Fairmont to Connelville. The evening performance was right on time and nearly every seat in the big tent was occupied for the main show, while several hundred remained for the "wild west" events which came immediately afterward, with a boxing bout between Richard Cole and a circus pugilist being featured in addition. Cole won $12 by staying "four one-minute rounds."

Many were disappointed because there was no parade but the company found it impossible after a five-hour making back of a landslide on the way to the city.

The circus has graduated from the small show class to a big three-day one and is as large as any outside of Harlan & Bulley. In every way it lives up to what the press agent said about it in advance.

Many trained wild animal acts have been added since last here. They included Steve Barry and his five fighting lions, Franz Woske's polar bears with great dogs intermingling, Florence Hare's who does a full body act with the bears, Bladon Donohy's jaguars while the horse is doing a leopards and Carl Wolfe's bengal hind leg rear were popular features.

Other animal acts include, as the program agent assured, a live bear by trainers who make plenty of use of the jaw and arm in their acts. Another feature is the two groups consisting of an elephant and two ponies, each also worked by lady trainers.

Dessa Harvey, with her trained pigeons and trained voices, Tom Horne's Bill pig and Carl Wolfe's trained alligator, the first ever trained.

A most feature is Prof. Klocke and his 16 thoroughbred horses in Sparks 10 drills and maneuvers, the Army 10 dancing horses in fancy gait, featuring Lady Fashion dancing Argentine tango and Baron Deibel ridden by

The KITCHEN CABINET

Even in ordinary life the unpleasant people are the happiest—those who work to make others happy and who forget themselves. The dissatisfied people are those who are seeking happiness for themselves.—Mrs. Besant.

Anyone who has had the thrill of a visit to a maple sugar camp when the sap is boiling, gathered and bottled and has poured the delectable sirup over a pan of clean snow and eaten the waxy deliciousness, has indeed experienced one of the joys of early spring in the North country.

One may boil the sirup at home and serve it on snow or ice, but the surroundings are lacking. The air like wine, the great woods, the song of the chickadees and the smell of the boiling sap in the open can never be imagined if not once experienced.

There are many fine dishes which may be prepared from maple sirup or sirup; as a filling for cake, maple sirup or sirup it is delicious.

Maple Patties—Take one cupful of maple sirup or sirup—if sirup is used add one-third less of cream. Beat until waxy and stir in one cupful of loss of broken nut meats. Biscuits or waffles are best. Beat until smooth and firm enough to stay on the cake. A buttered paper collar extending two inches above the cake may be pinned around it and the frosting or filling while soft poured on. Allow it to become firm before removing the collar. In this way a thick frosting that is creamy and soft may be placed on a cake top.

Maple Patties—Take two cupfuls of maple sirup, one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of corn sirup, two tablespoonfuls of butter, beat slowly and beat to the soft ball stage. Cool, then beat, adding a few drops of maple extract and a cupful of porous meats. Press into greased patty tins just before it becomes hard and when cool remove from the molds; wrap in waxed paper.

Maple Nuggets—Take two cupfuls of maple sirup, one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of corn sirup, two tablespoonfuls of butter, beat slowly and beat to the soft ball stage. Beat two egg whites until stiff, pour over the boiling sirup, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and beat until firm enough to drop in the form of small nuggets on a buttered sheet.

Maple Sirup—Take one cupful of maple sirup, one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of corn sirup, two tablespoonfuls of butter, beat slowly and beat to the soft ball stage. Beat two egg whites until stiff, pour over the boiling sirup, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and beat until firm enough to drop in the form of small nuggets on a buttered sheet.

While there are plenty of wild Indians in parts of Paraguay, no living man ever saw a pure-blooded Guarani. Inhabiting the alluvial and easily accessible sections, they were conquered and assimilated by the Spanish centuries ago, ceasing to exist as a separate people.
The common people of Paraguay, however, speak Guarani more readily than Spanish and nearly all place names are in the language. It is a very simple tongue with a total vocabulary of less than 800 words. The only numerals are 1, 2, 3 and 4.
Cleanliness was a virtue of the Guarani. No matter how rugged and dilapidated a Paraguayan peasant may be, his clothes and his person are clean. That he was not unskilled in certain artistic crafts is shown by the exquisite mandito lace, peculiar to Paraguay, the most sheer, webby, delicately beautiful thing of its kind in all the world. ## Webster's Life Policy Had Odd Restrictions

was the life insurance policy issued September 20, 1844, to Daniel Webster. It was for $5,000, which was considered a large sum in those days, and carried a premium of $100. The policy mentions certain restrictive clauses. If Daniel wanted to visit a large city, Washington included, or journey west of the Mississippi river, he had to get permission of the company and pay extra.

But Webster did not go into the wild west of the Mississippi. He never had much use for that country, anyhow. The idea of the insurance company in imposing the limitations was that empires was likely to be governed in the large cities, while the Indians were the hazard of the West.
Webster was also advised that if he died in a duel, was hanged or killed in a raid upon any city or Indian tribe there would be no money for the widow.—Detroit News.

CAR LOADINGS AND THEIR RELATION TO TRADE CONDITIONS

Decrease in March Due to Liquidation of Coal Stocked
Against a Strike.

BUYERS VERY CAUTIOUS

Statistics of freight car loadings have lately jumped into prominence as a trade indicator, and the figures week by week are being studied by business men with considerable care, says the American Metal Market.

It is hardly possible that one reason why so much interest came to be taken in car loadings is that last year the figures made a remarkably favorable and therefore comfortable showing. A million car week was a new thing, and there were 11 such weeks last year.

While the point may not rest upon altogether sufficient foundation, it is commonly thought that after the holidays car loadings ought normally to increase more or less steadily, and on the whole continuously until the year's peak is reached with the heavy grain movement that point usually falling in October. If this idea is correct, March has been a progressively bad month, for each week has shown a successive decrease, the high week of this year being the week ended March 1, with 915,049 cars loaded with revenue freight. The week ended March 29 showed 907,518 cars. With the week ended March 22 came a new unfavorable comparison, in that there was a decrease from the corresponding week of 1923, and the following week showed the same thing.

In the week ended March 29 a large part of the decrease was made by coal, and that can be explained, more or less, without reference to general trade conditions. There are large stocks of coal in consumers' hands, laid in long ago against the possibility of a strike, and these stocks have to be liquidated.

Some observers put rather a fine point on it by observing that while total car loadings in the week of March 29 were 907,518 against 934,271 a year earlier, less than carload loadings increased from 235,301 to 251,201. This, they say, shows plainly enough that much business is being done, but that buyers are very cautious and conservative. They have to have material because they are doing a large business, but they take as little as they can get along with, hence are ordering in less than carload lots more than a year ago. The argument does seem to have some plausibility, particularly as almost everyone, particularly sellers, are eager to admit that buyers are conservative at this time.

There is more or less argument all the time as to the relative importance and value, as trade indexes, of information on the one hand as to production and car loadings and of information on the other hand of orders and contracts placed. The former data are sometimes looked upon as the ground that they represent water that has passed the dam and therefore has no more force. Of course there is point to this claim, but orders and contracts are also open to question. Orders can be cancelled. Contracts can be strung out. Men may become enthusiastic and do a great deal of buying, only to quit altogether. It is not the buying that counts so much, as the reasons for buying, and ability to pay for the goods and consume them. Car loadings are a good index in this respect, that they represent all kinds of business, deliveries of raw materials to manufacturers, movement of parts, manufactured goods between manufacturers, and movement of finished product into actual and final consumption.

CHOICE DISHES

Those who are fond of peanut butter will like to try the following:

Rice and Peanut Casserole.—Add one-half cupful of rice uncooked to three cupfuls of cold water and bring quickly to a boil. Boil one minute then drain and dash cold water over it. In a casserole add one teaspoonful of salt and two cupfuls of boiling water and cook until tender. To one cupful of peanut butter add one beaten egg and one-half cupful of milk. Put all together in a baking dish well-buttered.

GAVE WIFE POISON GERMS TO END LOVE AFFAIR.

It is said that the defense of Clarence O. Daring, New York representative of the Minneapolis Heat Regulator Company, under arrest in White Plains, N. Y., on the charge that he tried to poison his wife with arsenic and to kill her with deadly disease germs, will be insanity. He declares he tried to make his wife break off a love affair he had with another woman.

Sprinkle with one-half cupful of cracked crumbs which have been well buttered. Bake until the crumbs are brown.

Apple Pudding.—Peel three large, good-flavored apples and cut into small pieces. Lay on a greased plate. Sprinkle with a little from a cupful of sugar. Cream one tablespoonful of butter with the rest of the sugar, one well-beaten egg, one-half cupful of milk and one and one-quarter cupfuls of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat thoroughly and pour over the apples and bake until brown. Serve with sugar and cream.

Tongue Slices.—Beat the yolk of an egg, add one-half teaspoonful of curry powder and two tablespoonfuls of French mustard. Add a few drops of tabasco sauce gradually, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and the juice of half a lemon. Into this dip the slices of boiled tongue and when well covered, roll the slices in sifted bread crumbs taken from the center of the loaf. Arrange in a well-oiled broiler until the crumbs are brown. Serve around a round of hot string beans well buttered and seasoned.

Carrot, Celery and Onion Salad.—Put three tender young carrots if of good size—more if small—through a meat grinder, add a half cupful of more of chopped celery and one small onion put through the grinder or scraped. Mix well and serve on the heart leaves of lettuce with the above mayonnaise dressing.

Beat Yankees and Giants is Slogan

Best New York is the slogan of the seven clubs in the two major leagues. Every hand in baseball outside the greatest city is directed against the Giants and the Yankees.

For three years New York fans have had the world's seven all to themselves, for three years the other seven clubs in each league have chased but chased in vain. No team has ever won four pennants in a row, so that outside of this city more everybody is coming against the champions not only of the National league but the American league.

POULTRY FACTS.

POULTRY SPECIALIST SAYS NO BEST BREED

Which is the best breed is a question often asked us. In answer we have to say that there is no best breed. You can find good and poor layers, large and small birds comparatively in every breed. It is the strain more than the breed that is really the more important thing to consider. There are three recognized general classes of poultry, the small birds or so-called egg producing class, the medium-sized bird, or the so-called dual purpose class, and the extremely large or the meat class. There is no great distinction between the egg class or the dual so far as the egg production is concerned, for many of the medium sized breeds are good egg layers. And in the small sized birds which are considered for egg laying only, there are sometimes found individuals that will weigh from five to five and one-half pounds, and these would make a fairly good meat bird.

In regard to the breed you would like to have, it is suggested that you decide upon whether you want eggs primarily, or whether you want general purpose birds. When you have made this decision, pick out the breed which you like best, because this is the breed with which you will get the best results. Then after you have picked the breed that you like best, buy your stock or eggs from a breeder whom you know has bred for the thing that you desire. This may be egg production, or it may be show purposes, or it may be a combination. You can find many breeders who have bred for egg production, but their stock may not be worth very much for show purposes. You can find breeders who have bred for show purposes, but their stock may not be worth very much for egg production. You can find a small percentage of breeders who have combined these two qualities and, of course, their stock would naturally be worth more because of this combination. Just as a parting mention be sure you know the breeder from whom you are buying your stock and be sure that he has the strain of birds which have the qualities which you desire. H. Emberton, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

IMPORTANT FACTORS IN CARE OF CHICKS

The care of the baby chick is of greatest importance during the early part of the chick's life. Careless handling often results in loss of chicks and stunted growth, points out D. H. Hall, extension poultry specialist at Clemson college, who adds the following suggestions:

In caring for the baby chicks the first thing that should be done is to see that they have a good place to sleep at night. The coops or the house where the baby chicks sleep should be kept clean, dry, and sanitary, should be free from lice and mites, and should afford protection from cats and nocturnal vermin, such as rats, which prey upon chicks.

The mother of the baby chicks should be confined in a coop or house, and the baby chicks should be allowed free range. If the mother is confined, the baby chicks will range around the mother, but will remain within a limited area of her. In case of rain or hawks, the mother can call the baby chicks to her and protect them in the coop. When the mother is allowed free range, the weaker baby chicks will be lost or become so weak that they will die on the range. The mother will take the baby chicks out through damp grass and early morning dew, thereby chilling them and weakening their bodies down to where where they may overcome them. The baby chicks should be confined in early morning, while the mother hen should be confined at all times, if best results are to be obtained from the care of the baby chicks, and the house should be kept dry and clean.

Proper Amount of Feed for Flock of Chickens

As to how much to feed, a question frequently asked, we can do no better than refer to the advice offered by the United States Department of Agriculture: "The feeder must use his own judgment in deciding the amount of feed which they will eat varies with the different pens and at different seasons of the year. They will eat more feed in the spring while laying heavily than in the summer and fall when laying fewer eggs. A fair general estimate is to feed about one quart of scratch grains and an equal weight of mash (about 1 1/2 quarts) daily to 15 hens of the general purpose breeds, such as the Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds or Wyandottes, or to 10 hens of the smaller or egg breeds. This would be about 7 1/2 pounds of scratch grains and mash daily to 100 Leghorns and about 9 1/2 pounds mash to general purpose fowls. If hens have free range or large runs contain- ing green food a general purpose hen will eat about 7 1/2 pounds of feed a year and a Leghorn will eat about 5 1/2 pounds to the green stuff consumed."

Preventive Measures Guard Against Diseases

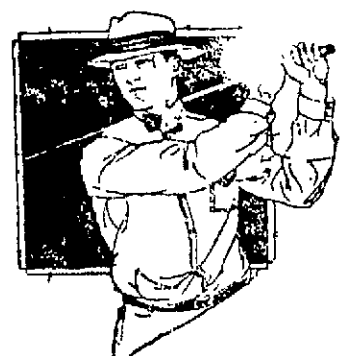

Early in the spring, when everything is around the farm is being cleaned and put in shape for the summer, a coat of whitewash will add greatly to the appearance and sanitation of the interior of the poultry house. It is the cheapest of all paints and may be used on the exterior of the building, too, if so desired. Whitewash is made by slaking about two pounds of quicklime in a pail with two gallons of water, pouring the milk with cloth or lather and allowing it to settle for one hour. Water is then added to bring the whitewash to a consistency which may be applied readily.

POULTRY NOTES

Wet brooder floors have caused the death of thousands of little ducklings. One cannot expect strong, lively chicks from poorly selected hatching eggs.

Any bird lacking vigor and constitution should be removed from the breeding pen. Unhealthy birds have no place there. Aiming for quality rather than quantity gets healthier chicks.

A good dry mash, fed by means of hoppers, should be before the hens all the time. In the morning feed your grain in deep straw litter and again at night, but let the hens out all the time they want.

A good-sized breed is usually considered best for the farm in spite of the fact that the small breeds may lay a few more eggs per year.

Incubator failures are usually the fault of the operator, but skill comes with practice and following the instructions accompanying the machine.

Early spring is nature's most favorable growing season. Early hatched chickens have the advantages of this favorable growing season and a longer growing period.

How often the old litter should be removed and replaced by new depends on the number of birds in the house, and dryness of the floor.

Do not take all the eggs to market. Let the children have all they want for breakfast. It will pay you.

Give the little poult a fresh supply of clean water at least twice a day and thoroughly scrub the water dishes twice a week.

RECALLS TRIP TO THE NORTH POLE

Peary's Aid Tells of Great Discovery on Fifteenth Anniversary.

Fifteen years ago April 6 the Stars and Stripes were unfurled to the Arctic breeze by Robert H. Peary when he discovered the North pole. On this historic date three lusty cheers were given by six human beings who stood atop the world. They were Commander Peary, his inseparable companion and assistant of many years, Matthew A. Henson, and four Eskimos, writes Lester A. Walton, in the New York World.

Peary is dead. The Eskimos may or may not be. No one in the confines of civilization knows. Only Henson is left to tell of the winning fight with nature in the land of ice and snow; of the successful dash to the earth's point farthest north over a trail of ever moving, drifting ice, mountainous ridges, often more than 100 feet high, treacherous thin ice and through open seas of water. Henson now has a clerical position in the New York custom house.

"Sometimes when I think of all we went through it seems hardly possible," Matt Henson remarked as he talked on the momentary perils Peary and members of his party encountered before reaching the North pole. "We had one hair-raising experience after another and looked death squarely in the face more than once. We were almost exhausted."

"In our final dash for the pole our party consisted of Commander Peary, myself and our four Eskimo attendants. Captain Bartlett, after reaching 88 degrees north, was the last to be sent back to headquarters, which was on April 1. When he bade us goodby I said to the commander: 'It looks as if we are the men ordained to unlock the secrets that have held the mystery of the Arctic for centuries.'"

"The only reply was: 'Yes! I only wish I were in as good condition as you.'"

"On our last lap we were getting an average of four hours sleep out of twenty-four. On the last day we put in eighteen hours without a wink of sleep. We were almost exhausted. I felt I could not go another mile. We stopped and built the igloo. Commander Peary unfolded his sledge and took out his old silk flag. 'This, my boy,' he said to me, 'is to be the last and most dutifully camp on earth. It will be named Camp Henson & Peary.'"

"Can it be that we have come to the end of our trail? I asked myself. With that thought in mind I temporarily forgot about the extreme cold. I glanced at the commander and saw that he was visibly affected. He fastened the silk flag to the staff and placed it on the top of his igloo. Then he said: 'Let's give three cheers to Old Glory, which we did with all the strength we could summon, the Eskimos joining in.'"

"We stayed 86 hours at the North pole. Four sets of observations were taken. On April 6 we had very little sleep as it was too cold to sleep. I remember it was on April 7, when Commander Peary gave orders to build a snow-shed to protect him from the drift of surface snow. I was certain he was about to take an observation. We handed him the pan of mercury and he lay flat on his stomach taking elevation and making notes. From the look on his face I was satisfied we had finally accomplished our mission."

"I was in the act of congratulating him when the wind blew something in his eyes and he turned his face aside. Orders were given not to allow him to sleep more than four hours as he wanted to make another observation four miles away. I dropped off to sleep with the thermometer at 20 degrees below zero."

"Upon Commander Peary's return from his observation a few miles distant from our igloo, he said to me enthusiastically: 'We will put the Stars and Stripes at the North Pole. This we did with a vim, unfurling Old Glory on top of ice. The fact that I looked in my glass which reflected the face of an old wizened man. I left the United States weighing 150 pounds and returned tipping the scales at 110.'"

"The Hensons were living at No. 117 East Eighth-fourth street, New York. In October, 1900, and when Henson walked into his house his wife did not know him and ordered him out. He had difficulty convincing her as to his identity. It was some time before he regained his former weight and his face lost the wrinkles and other distinguishing marks made by the ravages of Polar life."

Peary carried on Sledge. When Peary made his perilous trip of 411 miles from Cape Columbia to the North pole over an ice-covered ocean the other members of the party besides Henson were Prof. Donald B. MacMillan of Massachusetts; Capt. Robert Bartlett; Dr. John W. Gould; Prof. Marvin and George Borup, who was only twenty-one years old."

Peary's first trip to the Arctic zone was in 1891, when he accompanied Peary to Greenland. "Before it was finally decided that I should go, I was instructed to see a Philadelphia physician and undergo an examination," said Henson. "My test was satisfactory. It was found that my respiration was slower, my pulse slower and my temperature one-tenth higher than normal. The doctor said I would be the longest lived in the party and his predictions came true."

Henson first went to work for Peary as a valet, accompanied him to the Panama canal where the latter's services were required as a civil engineer with rank of second lieutenant."

U. S. MARATHON RUNNERS FOR OLYMPIC GAMES.

Clarence de Mar, of the Matrose Athletic Club, of Boston, will head the team of Marathon runners who will represent the United States in the Olympic games in Paris this summer. The other members of the team are Ralph A. Williams, Quincy, Mass.; William T. Obervall, of San Francisco; Carl W. Linder, of Quincy; Charles L. (Chuck) Miller, of Chicago, and Frank B. Wendling, of Buffalo, N. Y. The team, selected at an elimination race in Boston, sails May 24 for France.

cross it. At the end of six days it froze over sufficiently for them to take off snow shoes and cross the ice "bear fashion" in order not to break through.

The return trip to Cape Columbia is referred to by Henson as one crowded with excitement and constant danger. Although Commander Peary's condition was such that he had to be carried on his sledge practically all the time, he was still the heart and head of the party. After seventeen days of suffering, both mental and physical, the six men's hearts were made glad by sight of land.

Learn of Cook's Claim. The distance from Cape Columbia to Cape Sheridan where the steamer Roosevelt was anchored was thirty miles. It was April 25 when the ship was sighted. There was a great reunion when the boat was reached. In the midst of it news of Marvin's death was made known, causing a dampener on the auspicious occasion.

Although eager to get back to civilization and broadcast the news of his great feat, Peary was unable to leave Cape Sheridan until July, as the Roosevelt was icebound and could not break through. The time was spent hunting musk oxen and reindeer.

July 23, 1900, was a day of rejoicing, for the Roosevelt was able to extricate itself from its icy mooring and make some little headway by drifting. It was not, however, until August 4 that the ship reached open water and was able to sail under full steam. At Etah, North Greenland, the party learned of Doctor Cook's claim, that he had discovered the North pole, from two Eskimo boys. "Matt" Henson's diary on that date reads as follows:

"Mr. Harry Whitney came aboard with the boatwain and the cabin boy, who had been left here last fall on our way to Cape Sheridan. . . . Mr. Whitney is the gentleman who came up on the Erik last year and, at the last moment, decided to spend the winter with the natives. . . . I learn that Doctor Cook came over from Bismarck land with his two boys and, in a confidential conversation with Mr. Whitney, made the statement that he had reached the North pole."

"Professor MacMillan and I have talked to his two boys and have learned there is no foundation in fact for such a statement and the captain and others of the expedition have questioned them. If they were out on the ice of the Arctic ocean it was only for a short distance, not more than twenty or twenty-five miles. The boys are positive in the statement and my own boys, Ootah and Ooqueah, have talked to them also and got the same replies."

"The commander and the rest of us are in the humor to regard Mr. Whitney as a person who has been hoodwinked. We know Dr. Cook very well, also his reputation, and we know that he was never good for a hard day's work; in fact, he was not up to the average, and he is no hand at all in making the most of his resources. He probably has spun this yarn to Mr. Whitney and the boatwain to make himself look big to them."

Peary Party Sights Labrador. The Peary party sighted Labrador September 4 and it was from Indian harbor that the commander flashed the message, "Stars and Stripes nailed to the North pole."

Peary is characterized by Henson as a most courageous man, whose dominant trait was persistently equipped with fortitude. The negro explorer tells with undisguised admiration of the manner in which the commander lost all the toes on both feet except the small one on the left foot in 1898.

Discovery of the North pole was the culmination of seven unsuccessful attempts, says Henson. The eighth was the only one in which the commander and his assistant did not on several occasions face starvation. At times it was necessary to kill the dogs, eat some and feed the remainder to the other dogs."

Henson's first trip to the Arctic zone was in 1891, when he accompanied Peary to Greenland. "Before it was finally decided that I should go, I was instructed to see a Philadelphia physician and undergo an examination," said Henson. "My test was satisfactory. It was found that my respiration was slower, my pulse slower and my temperature one-tenth higher than normal. The doctor said I would be the longest lived in the party and his predictions came true."

ant in the United States navy. Henson was born on the Potomac in Charles county, Maryland, fifty-seven years ago.

Shortly after their return to the United States from their trip to the pole, Peary and Henson became slightly estranged. The commander sent Peary with small financial remuneration. For five years I did not get a cent. I told the commander if he could arrange to get me a good paying position, I would not lecture. He did not do it and I was forced to accept the offer Mr. Brady was good enough to make to me."

The two became reconciled before Peary's death in February, 1920. Henson saw his old friend and companion alive for the last time at the Killefer-Boeker, when Peary sent for him.

Baseball uniforms that have draped the backs of such notable players as Grover Cleveland Alexander, Bill Killefer, Bobby Hartnett, and the Jesses, Cheevers, Keen and Dunnovich will be worn this year by the Peary (High) School team. The uniforms—the same as were worn last year by the Chicago National League team—have been presented to the local school by William Killefer, Jr., the "Bill" Killefer who manages the Cubs. ## Prominent Sharon Druggist Gives Expert Testimony

Tells of Actual Results Patients Have Received, and of Their Statements to Him.

RECOMMENDATION IS UNQUALIFIED

Declares Same to Be a Splendid Remedy for Stomach, Liver and Blood Troubles.

Other Druggists Over Wide Territory Are Having Similar Experience With This Remarkable New Remedy.

Druggists in every section of Pennsylvania who know Kyer Collins, prominent Sharon druggist, will be interested in the experience he has been having with a new remedy for stomach and blood troubles. Druggists, naturally, are skeptical when asked to order a new medicine. They are used to having salesmen tell them that their medicine is the best in the world. So when they find that a medicine is all and more than was claimed for it they are both surprised and delighted.

Mr. Collins very frankly says that when he was asked to place a trial order for Salus, he thought it was just an ordinary medicine. The one thing that made it stand out, was its record of sales in other places. So like the progressive but careful business man that he is he ordered a comparatively small quantity. Some what to his surprise the people who bought the first of it came back for more. By the time they had taken four or five bottles their common colds and rheumatism were doing them. This started him to investigate, and he has written the manufacturer the following statement:

"About two months ago I took a trial order for Salus, and I must say that it is a splendid remedy for stomach, liver and blood complaints. 'Nearly every day people come into the store asking for a good remedy for indigestion, and I must say that I find that the results are remarkable, and that the people who have tried it recommend it to their friends.'"

Personally, I have found it to be a product of real merit, and am glad to recommend it. (Signed) Collins Drug Store. (By) Myer Collins, Proprietor. When food doesn't digest, and I feel like a lump of lead, a sour stomach, constipation, heart-burn, loss of appetite, restless, nervous stomach, catarrhs and acute indigestion, and even more serious complications arise eventually if neglected, it is in these distressing complaints that Salus is especially recommended. Say if you will give it a fair trial you will find that it is all that is claimed for it. In fact if you take six bottles and are not satisfied with the results your druggist is authorized by the manufacturer to refund your money. Salus is sold in Connelville by A. A. Clarke, Connelville Drug Co., and other high class druggists. Advertisement—25c per day.

SOME ERROR

"Look here," gasped the poet to the subeditor. "I wrote a poem about my little boy, which began, 'My son, my plucky counterpart.'"

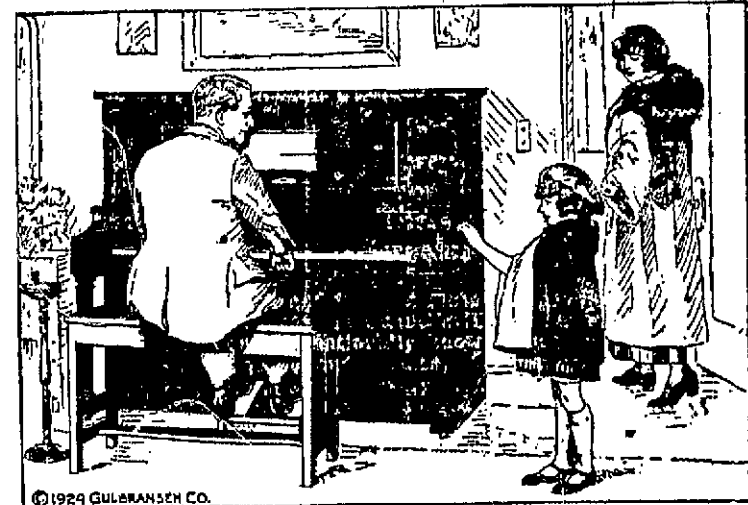

"Well," replied the subeditor. "The poet drew a paper from his pocket."

"Read," he shouted. "See what your compositor has done."

The subeditor read: "My son, my plucky counterpart. 'Boys' Life."

Grounds Ready But Little Is Known of Schedule for Tennis Matches Tomorrow

Local School Has Never Received Notice to Enter Eliminations.

PLANS UNSATISFACTORY

Although the eliminations in the tennis tournament of the Fayette County Inter-Scholastic Athletic Association are scheduled to be played on the courts here on the South Side tomorrow nothing regarding them is known to school officials here.

It was understood by Superintendent B. B. Smith, in a conversation with President Russell of the county association, that notices were to be sent out early this week regarding the proposed matches, with the possibility that eight schools would participate.

No such notice has been received in Connellsville, however.

The grounds will be ready for use tomorrow if the matches are to come off. The local school, however, is considerably in the dark as to what the plans are, how many contestants may participate and just what opponents will meet.

Regardless of any plans the committee in charge may have drawn up, they are certain to be rather unsatisfactory. There has been no opportunity for the schools to try out their tennis material and select the best. It will hardly be a fair test for the boys as none will have his arm in shape for a grueling match. In all, it doesn't look much as though there will be any county scholastic matches here tomorrow. In the opinion of many, the playing of the eliminations is set for early next week.

Less the grounds are ready and will be available if the contestants appear.

Perry Township Has Entries for Tennis Matches Selected

The Perry Township High School's entries in the tennis elimination contest in Connellsville Saturday were made known yesterday by the high school officials. Miss Mary Sisk and Virginia Wilson will take part in the girls' singles, while Ralph Martin and Walter Murphy will participate in the boys' singles.

The candidates for the tennis tennis have been working earnestly for the past few weeks, and the outlook for the teams is very bright. The coach, M. M. Robinson, is well pleased with the showing made by both teams so far.

Pirates Win Another.

The Pittsburgh Pirates won two games in a row when, returning to Pittsburgh yesterday, they defeated the St. Louis Cardinals in a six-inning, 3-2, Wright's triple, after Grimm had been purposely walked, did the work. It was another victory for Kramer.

Capitan Glass Players were scheduled to practice on their own field at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The grounds are in shape for play.

South Brownsville High School was the first to file its entries for the Fayette County Inter-Scholastic Athletic Association's track meet at Dawson on May 1. The list of names was received yesterday.

One more week is ahead of the athletes training for the county track and field meet. Better chances have been endangered by a seeming slackness in observing training rules on

Baseball Notes

Jack Cheever says a change of pace is most necessary for pitchers.

Leo Russell and "Slim" Walton, rookie players, have been released by Los Angeles.

Hobe Brummitt, Memphis infielder, has been sold to the Asheville South Atlantic league club.

Clark Griffith released three of his Washington players to the Minneapolis team. They are Pitchers Dudley, Moon and Bruggin.

Fog Cvet, veteran left-handed pitcher, who was with Indianapolis several seasons has reported to the New Orleans Pelicans.

Wraps Have Call for Spring Wear

Coat Dresses and Capes Are Among French Fashion Offerings.

In street costumes alone the choice of material and lines is most varied, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald, starting with the idea of the simple suit and street dress made on rather bovine, or as the French call it "garcon" lines, suits for the street are developed in more elaborate manner or for more formal occasions, turning through so many different forms that classification seems impossible.

It may be that later in the season a decided preference for one of the more elaborate types will spring up to alienate with the already established tailored mode. At present time it would be hard to make any positive statement, but the fashions who have looked their judgment on the success of short coats of fur for spring and early summer wear, and foolish as it may seem some of them have, are recklessly running counter to this tide of street costume and wraps.

Earlier announcements from Paris that many of the spring dresses will have wraps to be worn with them is borne out with each showing on this side as it comes along. Even a blouse costume shown by Patou has its individual coat, a quiet plaited blouse design.

Wraps as Long as Dresses. Some of the new wraps are as long as the dresses, some of them are short, others three-quarter length. And capes, cape-back dresses and straight skirt-like capes are numerous. The cape, except perhaps for evening, always is short. Fur as trimming seems to be more prevalent in the early models designed in this country than in those shown from Paris, although a few models are collared with light pelts. More enthusiasm apparently is shown for the elegant fur trimmings and the smart scarf models than for fur of any description.

Coat dresses not exactly on the order of those we have known before but still near enough to suit those to be so classified, are another type of street costume with which to reckon. Some of these coat dresses might be better described as multi-like dresses, or a long tunic looks more or less like a jacket and a side closing follows the line of the wrap-around skirt, with the result that the dress looks very like a suit worn buttoned up, although it is in reality one piece. In a few instances a suit dress is shown with a straight one-piece back and the jacket line in the front simulated by a circular peplum or a straight tucked blouse.

Any complaint that the woman to whom the Jeanne d'Alba models and the mantel tailored lines are unacceptable may have to forgive it with the very line which the actual models. Skirts, trousers and wraps are shown with sufficient dignity of line to give the really distinctively gowned woman.

Charming Dress of Black Satin Gives Suggestive Effect of a Suit. Skirt Draped Through Slit at One Side is of Crepe.

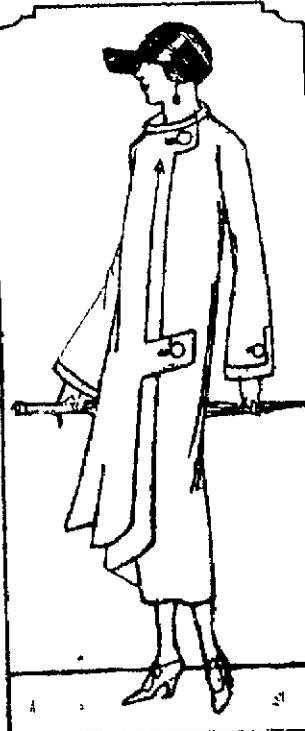

That difference of style that sets her apart from the younger women who are rather apt to carry things too far in the matter of wearing the popular thing.

One of the most interesting of the unadorned suits is a study in plaits by the house of Jean Patou. Plaits are a theme in especial favor with this house. Black satin, interlaced in its shiny quality, is used and except for a plain strip at each side and plain sections at the collar the entire coat is plaited. It is almost like a suit and plaited skirt except for the plain under-arm strip, two plaits of the plaiting set on one above the other, compose the skirt portion of the coat. Plaits which hang from neck to the finger tip length make the jacket like upper portion.

The sleeves also are plaited and as with the plaits of the rest of the coat the lower slit-like line is Source. In the sleeves the tucks hang loose from the elbow to the wrist and a second plaited flounce is not added so that it falls well over the hands. The collar is double about the throat. This is the coat designed to wear with the blouse of white chiffon.

One Model Called "Microbe." A model oddly and humorously called "Microbe" is one by Yvett. It, too, emphasizes two points in the spring models, plaits and wraps to match frocks. Reversing the procedure of the design just described this model uses the plaiting entirely in the dress and the trimming on the coat is merely wide bands composed of small interlaced strips. Two bands circle the bottom of the coat, one the sleeves and one the collar. Except for the fact that the coat and frock are in exactly the same shade of toast brown—pale beige, as the French call it—no great stress is laid on similarity either in the trimming or material. The frock is of georgette, and the coat is placed in a more practical class by being fastened in button cloth. There is a certain expertness in this restraint of a repetition which might make the effect wearisome as well as reveal an unattractiveness in the paucity of ideas. The frock is almost sleeveless, and is plaited from the square-cut neck to the low waistline. Two flat, loose bands circle the hips, preserving a straight silhouette, which is completed by fine straight plaits below. A very narrow tie girdle is used.

With the first appearance of the black and white theme, a trifle too ardently accepted, the makers are relieving the combination with a touch of color. Dressed in some yellow in combination with black, as well as the white, and Lanvin, with flawless good taste, uses the black and white, but tones it charmingly with a touch of clear blue, or perhaps a little lacquered red. In this collection are seen frocks of white with top coats of black bound with white grosgrain ribbon.

Astonishingly smart is a severe dress for street wear of navy blue set with a row of buttons trimming the back from the top of the standing collar to the skirt hem. The buttons are placed on a band evidently to avoid complications with the bottom of the tunic, which is in one piece with the waist, but falls separate each side of the band of buttons from the waistline to below the hips. At the front the tunic appears in the form of an applied peplum each side, but not in the front. A belt extends across the space, with ornaments at each side. No suggestion of a waistline, however, is seen in the back. Sleeves in this dress are tight and long.

Tunic for Street Costumes. The tunic type of dress will undoubtedly afford inspiration for many costumes for the street. The unbroken line which may be used in this manner at the waist is often of a coat-like aspect. This is seen in a smart dress of satin, with a row of the new figured crepe silk windings about the neck and caught through a slit at the front of the dress. A side closing in this design and a peplum, or circular flounce, as the designers prefer to have it called, give the jacket line. The flounce is set on at the waistline in a series of points.

A coat dress of mandarin inspiration has the resemblance to a long coat. The peculiar closing at the neck and the loose straight cut, with regular cut fastenings makes this model particularly novel.

Trimming in most of the models for street wear confines itself to the skillful use of material. Lanvin uses braids and buttons or cord effects in narrow ribbons which may be of color contrasting with the shade of the costume.

The inconsequential dresses of light summer silks and crepes are some times the most interesting part of the procession of new lines which are sent from Paris for the warm weather wardrobe. In these gowns, taken a trifle less seriously than the more formal types of costume, the designers often try out some of the most novel lines and entertaining oddities.
